Southwestern grad testifies at hearing on nuclear energy

Bramer supports bill on small modular reactors

BY BOB DEMAREE

Elizabeth Bramer grew up in Hanover not far from the site of the Marble Hill Nuclear Power Plant in Saluda Township that was abandoned halfway through construction in 1984.

Her fascination with that project led her to pursue a career in nuclear engineering and she was part of a group that appeared recently before the Indiana State Utilities Committee in support of Senate Bill 271 that would allow small modular nuclear reactors in Indiana.

Bramer, a 2017 graduate of Southwestern High School, is currently finishing her nuclear engineering major at Purdue University before beginning a job in June at General Electric Hitachi Nuclear Energy in Wilmington, North Carolina, as an engineer in the company's stability and radiological unit.

Elizabeth Bramer

Bramer, president of Women in Nuclear at Purdue, testified before the committee along with Morgan Smith, vice president of the organization. They were joined by other Purdue student organizations in support of the legislation that included Minorities in Nuclear Engineering and Sciences, Nuclear Engineer Graduate Students and the American Nuclear Society.

The bill, authored by State Senators Eric Koch and Blake Doriot, successfully passed the Senate Utilities Committee by an 8-2 vote, and is awaiting the next step. Bramer said there's a possibility that they may testify again as the legislation goes through the state House of Representatives.

Bramer noted that in recent history "Indiana has pretty much shut out all nuclear options in the state" and this legislation will set up the framework to allow small modular nuclear reactors to exist in the state, and is the first step in the process to getting to where they are allowed in the state.

Indiana has been skittish about nuclear power since the early 1980s. After the accident in 1979 at the Three Mile Island Nuclear Generating Station in Bridge contractors for Jefferson County used an aerial lift to extend over the side of the Crooked Creek Bridge on West Street in downtown Madison and spray liquid concrete pumped from a cement truck into a large area of erosion near the bridge structure. The repairs are part of the bridge maintenance work listed in a recent inspection report. Although located in the city, the bridge is maintained by Jefferson County. Traffic coming off Michigan Road Hill was detoured off of West street until the work was completed.

COVID-19

Jefferson County jail sees better virus numbers

BY BOB DEMAREE

The plight of inmates and staff battling COVID-19 at the Jefferson County Jail continues to move in a better direction with Sheriff Dave Thomas reporting Monday that the number of infections is falling and all cell blocks are scheduled to go off quarantine on Saturday.

Thomas said the jail quarantines by cell block, and that the quarantine for each cell block should be ending soon. Additionally, he said three more staff members have returned to work.

Thomas said the jail staff is working with Advanced Correctional Healthcare Inc., to address any ways to better adapt the jail and staff to handle COVID-19.

"It's a real thing and we're trying to keep up with it as much as we can," Thomas said.

Even with the profusion of COVID-19 throughout the community during all but one year of Thomas' term in office, he said those in the jail, "have had lower level symptoms," and that the jail and its staff have been fortunate to have not any severe cases so far.

Meanwhile, the City of Madison has canceled all Senior Citizens dances in February due to high community COVID numbers and recently extremely cold weather. The dances are scheduled to resume on Friday nights in March.

On Monday, Jefferson County's number of positive COVID-19 cases during the pandemic reached 8,865, an increase of 129 since Friday. Meanwhile, Switzerland County is now at 2,196 with 22 new cases since Friday.

U.S. fully approves Moderna vaccine

BY MATTHEW PERRONE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — U.S. health regulators on Monday granted full approval to Moderna's COVID-19 vaccine, a shot that's already been given to tens of millions of Americans since its emergency authorization over a year ago.

The action by the Food and Drug Administration means the agency has completed the same rigorous, time-consuming review of Moderna's shot as dozens of other long-established vaccines.

The decision was bolstered by real-world evidence from the more than 200 million doses administered in the U.S. since

Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, there was increased opposition to nuclear power. That led to the abandonment of the Bailly Nuclear Power Plant in northwestern Indiana in 1981 and then the abandonment of Marble Hill in 1984.

Construction had begun on the Marble Hill plant in 1977, and $2.5 billion had been spent when Public Service Indiana cited overwhelming increasing costs and a shortage of funds among reasons to stop construction.

However, Bramer said she believes nuclear energy has made advances in the last 40 years, and that by moving away from large plants to smaller ones that it creates more safety. "When you go smaller with nuclear it's more inherently safe because there are less components involved, so there is less of an area for failure." She said the mechanisms that integrate backup systems also more effectively take care of any issues that might occur.

Bramer said her interest in nuclear stemmed from the career of her father, David Bramer, as a chemical engineer. "I was very interested in engineering from a young age," she said, but her interest in nuclear energy was heightened after she saw the movie, "Back to the Future" with the 1.21 gigawatt Delorean time machine powered by a nuclear fission reactor.

"That was my starting point, but then we would drive past Marble Hill on our way to Louisville" and she would have lots of questions. And through that, she developed a strong interest in nuclear engineering.

During her testimony to the Senate Utilities Committee, Bramer said, "Not long after committing to the program that I now loved, I realized that I could not work in the field of my dreams while living close to my family and in my home state because there are no jobs in nuclear energy in Indiana. I was heartbroken."

She continued, "With small modular reactors, jobs like these can indeed be brought to our great state of Indiana, jobs that keep the high-caliber students from Purdue University in Indiana; jobs that give Hoosiers a reason to stay in their beloved state."

As she ended her testimony, Bramer said, "We stand before you as a delegation of students, faculty and staff of nuclear engineering at Purdue University asking you to think wisely with your next steps with this bill," citing "small nuclear reactors as the next small step to bring Indiana into that promising future."

In Indiana, there were 48 new deaths reported since Friday for an overall total of 20,556. The weekend increase in cases throughout state was 19,367, now at a total of 1,623,439 during the pandemic. Indiana's positivity is 29.6%.

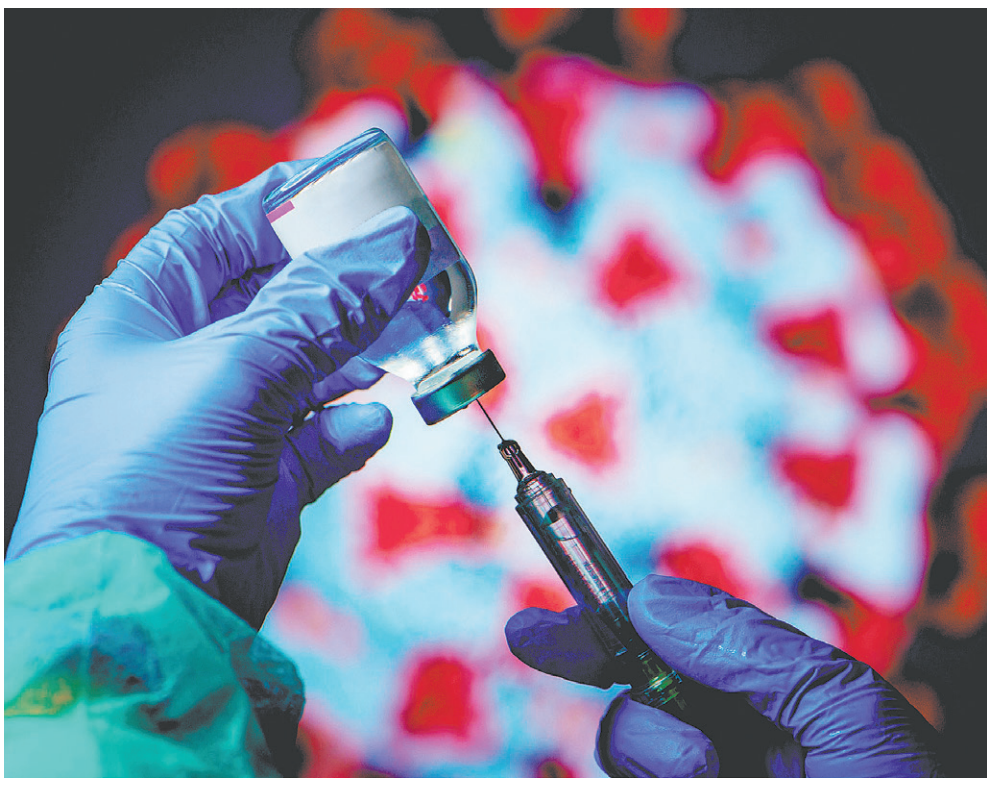
the FDA cleared the shot in December 2020. The FDA granted full approval of Pfizer's vaccine last August.

Public health advocates initially hoped the regulatory distinction would boost public confidence in the shots. But there was no discernable bump in vaccinations after the Pfizer approval, which was heavily promoted by President Joe Biden and other federal officials. Still, regulators said Monday they hoped the extra endorsement would encourage more people to get vaccinated.

More than 211 million Americans, or 63% of the total population, are fully vaccinated. About 86 million people have gotten a booster dose. Vaccinations peaked last spring at more than 3 million per day, and now average less than 750,000 per day. The pace of vaccinations briefly spiked following news of the omicron variant in December but has since slowed again.



The FDA reviewed months of additional follow-up data submitted by Moderna to confirm the vaccine's effectiveness against COVID-19. The FDA also analyzed and kept watch for serious side effects that have proved to be very rare. The vaccine includes a warning about a rare type of heart inflammation that mostly occurs in young men following the second dose. Most cases are mild and resolve quickly.

Additionally, FDA reviewed the company's manufacturing process and facilities.

"The public can be assured that this vaccine was approved in keeping with the FDA's rigorous scientific standards," said Dr. Peter Marks, FDA's top vaccine regulator, in a statement.

With full approval, Moderna will now market the vaccine under the brand name, Spikevax. It is the first FDA-approved product for the Cambridge, Massachusetts-based company.

In the U.S., Moderna is used only by adults, for initial vaccination and as a half-dose booster. The company said last fall that FDA had delayed deciding whether to clear the shots for 12- to 17-year-olds as it examined the heart inflammation risk.

Johnson & Johnson has not yet applied for full approval of its COVID-19 vaccine.

Seek advice in new book 'How Can I Forgive My Cheating Partner?'

Dear Annie: My wife and I have been married for eight years, and we have four beautiful boys together. A little over a year ago, I caught her having an affair with one of her co-workers.

The details of the affair broke me.

Over the past year, the pain and hurt has turned into resentment and major distrust. I don't want to live like this, but I don't want to change things for my boys. I worry that a change of home life would hurt them in the long run. — Still Hurting

Dear Hurting: It is totally understandable that you are still hurting from your wife's betrayal. You suffered a real trauma, and you need to allow yourself time to heal. Once you can heal, then you can decide if you want to stay or not, but staying out of guilt and feeling bad for your sons is not reason enough.

You can heal from this and forgive your wife's mistakes, but the forgiveness will be a gift that you give to yourself and not to anyone else. If you are just muddling through your marriage but are secretly unhappy, then your sons will sense that, and it will be damaging for them to watch you in that state. The best thing to do is to go to marriage counseling, and maybe therapy yourself as well, so that you can have a better understanding of your marriage. Many couples survive infidelity if that is what you want to do.

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

I wrote a new book called "How Can I Forgive My Cheating Partner?" I wrote this because, over the years, this has been one of the questions asked most often. Now you know that you are not alone and there are many other people out there struggling in similar situations. Best of luck to you as you move forward.

Dear Annie: My husband and I have been married for a year now. He has told me that a female friend of his from medical school who I've never met has been texting him about her failed relationships. She texts, "I'm so single" and, "Why are boys so dumb?" and he messages her affirming her that one day she will find someone.

At first, I felt bad for her. I don't mind asking the opposite sex for advice once or twice. At least, I didn't mind it until I found out that this is a nonstop occurrence of her messaging him and telling him about how single she is. I was on his phone looking at our pictures together when she messaged him complaining, so I decided to open the message and saw a text message from her saying, "is it weird if i send you a booty pic to show you my progress at the gym." He replied, "yes that's weird," and she ignored him and sent him a picture of her butt in tight gym clothes.

So, my question is, what should I do? Is this a normal friendship, or should I seriously be worried about this girl? — Starting to Worry

Dear Starting to Worry: No, this is not normal behavior, and all signs show that she is after your husband. The good news is that he told you about her and that he finds her behavior to be weird. I would describe it as flat-out seductive. It is time for their friendship to end. Ask your husband to take a texting break from her.

Nieces and nephews ignore our gifts

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I am in a bit of a crush of emotions, and I am writing about a common topic that appears in your column. It is the first time I have ever written to anyone for advice, but I do want an opinion.

My husband and I have done well for ourselves by reasonable means. We have no children, and I am a bit younger and successful in my career. My husband, who is retired now, made a steady income. It was lower than it might have been, but he enjoyed his work. My job was higher-paying but more stressful, so we have had the perfect match for a happy household.

We saved and managed to pay off our mortgage in 10 years; we also paid off our cars in a few years and were able to buy new ones. We have not had to worry about credit card debt.

Without children, and his side being extremely well off, we have been very generous to my five nieces and nephews, and one nephew from my brother's second marriage, making a total of six. We also have written our will so that they will inherit everything evenly. Every Christmas and each birthday, they receive a substantial check. They also received a special gift to celebrate coming of age — each different — but all to mark the moments when they were starting a new part of life.

We flew to their high school and college graduations, and we generously acknowledged them. As I said, we have done well. We are not wealthy but simply comfortable, and we love them. My husband has always supported every one of these indulgences.

In the past three years, we have received no acknowledgement of our gifts on my brother's side unless we ask my brother if the kids got the "gift." This includes a college graduation gift and some special gifts during the hard days of COVID-19. We may then receive a text. And even then, maybe not.

I am at such a crossroads. Do we stop? Do we just send a card? Or do we send a donation, adopt a family at Christmas, perhaps, in their name next year? I want to be bigger than this and cannot believe how much this has broken my heart. My one sister's boy has also stopped sending a text to thank us this year, too, and we were so close, and his silence was so completely unexpected. These are children whom we have loved and been close to, taken on trips, and been there for when we could, although we have always lived miles apart.

And please understand these "children" range in age from 20-26, so it has become an acquired sense of entitlement. It was not always this way. — An Aunt and Uncle Kicked to the Curb

Dear Kicked to the Curb: Why don't you just tell your nieces and nephews how you feel? My guess is that they are completely clueless about it, and this has everything to do with their being in their early 20s, trying to figure out jobs, relationships and overall living situations. I doubt if they are consciously kicking you to the curb. They are probably so wrapped up in their own lives that they have completely forgotten. They just need a reminder.

However, if, after the reminder that you love thank-you notes or appreciation, they still fail to thank you, then stop sending them gifts, at least for a while. And explore the possibility of donating to charities in your will.

East Coast digs out from weekend blizzard

BY MARK PRATT AND MIKE CATALINI
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — The sun shone down on much of the East Coast on Sunday, a day after a vicious nor'easter brought blizzard conditions to many areas, and left more than 100,000 customers without power for a stretch that could last into Monday.

Winds that had gusted to more than 80 mph on Saturday died down on Sunday, and temperatures climbed into the upper teens and 20s as people emerged from their homes to dig out.

The storm dumped snow from Virginia to Maine, but Massachusetts bore the brunt of the fury, with the neighboring towns of Sharon and Stoughton getting more than 30 inches of snow.

More than 100,000 lost power at the height of the storm, mostly in Massachusetts. That had dropped to about 35,000 by Sunday afternoon, mostly on hard-hit Cape Cod. No other states reported widespread outages.

Utility Eversource said Sunday it had 1,700 crews working to restore electricity in Massachusetts, and customers will have their power back on "by the end of the day Monday, with most before then."

Authorities on Long Island reported three storm-related deaths. Suffolk County police said an elderly man fell into a swimming pool while shoveling snow in Southhold and was pronounced dead after resuscitation attempts failed. Nassau County officials said two men aged 53 and 75 died in the town of Syosset while shoveling snow.

Massachusetts Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito said at a news conference that officials were not aware of any storm-related fatalities in the state.

In and around New York City, snow totals ranged from a few inches north and west of the city to more than 2 feet in Islip on Long Island, according to the National Weather Service. Warren, Rhode Island got more than 2 feet, and Norwich, Connecticut finished with 22 inches (56 centimeters). Some areas of Maine and New Hampshire also received more than a foot.

Winds gusted as high as 83 mph on Cape Cod. Coastal towns flooded, with wind and waves battering Weymouth, south of Boston, flooding streets with a slurry of frigid water, according to video posted on social media. Other videos showed a street underwater on Nantucket and waves crashing against the windows of a building in Plymouth.

A Rhode Island couple got married as planned Saturday during the blizzard, according to broadcast reports. Sally Faulkner and Adam Irujo had been planning a wedding for 14 months, so they went through with the nuptials on the steps of the Providence Public Library in front of a few family and friends.

Forecasters watched closely for new snowfall records, especially in Boston. The Boston area's modern snowfall record for a winter storm is 27.6 inches, set in 2003.

The city tied its record for biggest single-day snowfall on Saturday, with 23.6 inches, the National Weather Service said.

Like most major winter storms in New England, it drew comparisons to the infamous Blizzard of '78, which paralyzed the region for days.

"I was around for the Blizzard of '78, and this one was worse. The wind was tremendous," Joe Brescia, 72, said Sunday, tears streaming down his face from the bitter cold as he shoveled his sidewalk in Warwick, Rhode Island.

Bao Ha, 26, got a shock when he went outside Sunday morning.

"It's funny, it didn't look so bad when I looked out the window this morning," he said as he shoveled the sidewalk in front of his home in Waltham outside Boston, which according to the National Weather Service, got 16 inches of snow. "But it's light, so it's easy to shovel."

Climate change, particularly the warming ocean, probably influenced the strength of the storm, atmospheric researchers said.

Much warmer ocean waters "are certainly playing a role in the strengthening of the storm system and increased moisture available for the storm," said University of Oklahoma meteorology professor Jason Furtado. "But it isn't the only thing."

The storm had two saving graces: Dry snow less capable of snapping trees and tearing down power lines, and its timing on a weekend, when schools were closed and few people were commuting.

However, some school districts announced that classes were canceled Monday to allow for snow removal, including Attleboro and Quincy schools in Massachusetts. Warwick, Rhode Island, schools are going remote on Monday to accommodate snow removal.

The National Weather Service considers a storm a blizzard if it has snowfall or blowing snow, as well as winds of at least 35 mph that reduce visibility to a quarter-mile or less for at least three hours. In many areas, Saturday's storm met those criteria.

Florida cold enough for iguanas to fall from trees

BY CURT ANDERSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — A cold snap in Florida is different than in other places. We put on heavy coats when it's 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

No blizzard conditions here in the Sunshine State, but we have our issues as well when the thermometer drops.

The National Weather Service said Sunday it's all going to warm up nicely after the weekend. The low temperatures near freezing are quite rare in Florida, but at first glance the citrus, strawberry and tomato winter crops suffered no major damage. Farmers spray water onto the crops to help protect them from the cold.

As for iguanas, well, that's another matter. They are an invasive species, well accustomed to the trees of South Florida. When it gets cold, below 40 degrees Fahrenheit they go into a sort of suspended animation mode. And they fall to the ground.

But they usually wake up with the sun's warmth.

It got cold in Florida this weekend. The National Weather Service reported that West Palm Beach hit 37 degrees Fahrenheit (about 3 degrees Celsius), the coldest morning of the past 12 years. Up the East Coast in Vero Beach, the record low was tied at 30 degrees Fahrenheit, set in 1978.

Still, it's not like a white-out. The Gasparilla pirate parade in Tampa, which was not held last year because of the coronavirus pandemic, went off without a hitch Saturday in sunny but chilly weather. Thousands of people did pirate-y things, snagged beads from the parade route, and generally ate, drank and were merry.

Yet the unseasonably cold weather in Florida prompted one church on the Gulf of Mexico side of the state to rethink how it would welcome parishioners and visitors.

St. Michael the Archangel, on Siesta Key, canceled its two scheduled Masses on Sunday because it was too cold. The church is going through a renovation and has been holding Mass outdoors, as it did on Saturday afternoon in 49 degree Fahrenheit temperatures and with brisk winds making it feel even colder.

Masses have been held under a tent, but Saturday's wind dislodged one of the support posts and rendered the temporary structure unsafe. The Rev. Michael Cannon was offering the sacrament of communion Sunday — drive-thru style — but Mass would not be held, in anticipation of temperatures falling into the mid-20s shortly after sunrise in the Sarasota area.

"It would not be wise to have Masses with those kinds of temperatures," Cannon said.

The church is expected to be fully functional again with completed renovations by Easter.

And it'll be beach weather again in Florida soon. It always is.

Madison takes North Harrison to overtime before falling

Madison coach Adam Stotts had the type of week that few coaches would envy. But after watching his team rally to nearly knock off the sectional favorite, the first-year coach was left smiling.

Just four days after the Cubs lost leading scorer Kaden Oliver to a transfer, Madison took North Harrison into overtime and just missed a chance to win, falling 49-47 on Saturday in the Cubs' first game in three weeks.

Oliver shocked the school on Wednesday when he left to enroll at Silver Creek after his mother, Hannah, was hired as the new assistant principal at the Sellersburg school. Oliver took his team-leading 22 points per game with him, leaving the Cubs a huge void to fill.

But rather than feel sorry for themselves, the Cubs responded with a terrific week of practice and came to within rimmed-out Henry Grote 3-pointer from knocking off North Harrison.

"Everybody's been checking on me all week and my coaches have been picking me up. I think, as a first year coach, it's hard to take as many lumps as I have so far this year and it's been it's been a long couple of weeks but I think our kids played so hard," said Stotts, who had lost another starter, Jack Miller, to transfer before the season started. "It was great to see the way the guys responded and played the whole game. I think the more that these guys get to play with each other, the more we'll see them grow."

Madison (5-8) was understandably out of sorts at the start of the game as it worked out a new style of play without Oliver on the floor. The Cubs fell behind 15-2 just over five minutes into the game and still trailed 15-4 at the quarter break.

But Madison opened the second quarter on fire, with senior Jackson Falconberry leading a charge that saw the Cubs score the first nine points to pull to within 15-13 just two minutes into the quarter. North Harrison regrouped to push the lead back to nine, but Madison had sent a message that it wasn't going to go away easily.

The Cubs opened the fourth facing a 36-28 deficit and still trailed by eight (40-32) with 5:44 left in regulation when they made their move. Freshman Quincy Reynolds scored a tough basket inside and added the free throw, Grote hit a basket and Falconberry drove hard to the basket for two points to close the gap to 42-39 with a minute to play.

Madison's defense, which had played well all game, came up huge in the final minute. The Cubs forced a bad shot by North Harrison and Grote drilled a 3-pointer with 46 seconds to go to tie the game 42-42. Madison's defense then held the Cougars to one bad shot at the buzzer before heading to overtime.

Colin Yancey opened the extra session with a steal and was fouled with his free throw giving Madison its first — and what proved to be only — lead of the game at 43-42. North Harrison's Ethan Oakley answered with a basket on the other end to push the Cougars back on top and they never trailed again.

But the game wasn't over yet.

Nine local wrestlers advance to regional after strong sectional performances

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

NORTH VERNON — A total of nine local wrestlers earned their way into the regional round after strong performances at the IHSAA Sectional at Jennings County on Saturday.

Three wrestlers — Madison's Eli Stewart and Van Skinner and Switzerland County's Gabe Rose — each came away with runner-up finishes while four finished third and two placed fourth.

It was a nice performance for a Madison squad that came into the tourney fighting some serious injuries and having had little practice or competition time over the past two weeks thanks to COVID issues at the school and the weather.

"I'm super proud of our guys overcoming no practices and the last three weeks of our season canceled due to COVID, "Madison coach Tyson Skinner said. "The only negative I can find with our day was forfeiting 220 pounds and heavyweight. Other teams fill these with (football) offensive linemen and I can't get our linemen to buy into the fact that wrestling will make them better linemen like other schools have."

No injury for Madison was bigger than the knee injury suffered by Van Skinner. The junior tore his LCL at the Cub Classic in early January and had been able to rest the leg, but he competed at 195 pounds on Saturday with a heavy knee brace in place.

Skinner (40-2), the top seed, was able to reach the semifinals without competing after getting two forfeits then pinned Columbus North's Bryce Abner in 1:03 in the semifinals. But he didn't have the strength or mobility to fight off Columbus East's Josh Schrader in the final, falling 5-3.

Stewart (32-8) earned his trip to the finals at 120 pounds by avenging a loss to Southwestern's Keegan Gross in the semifinals. Gross (33-3) had claimed a major decision over Stewart in the season opener, but Stewart flipped the tables and scored a fall

Bengals top Chiefs 27-24 in OT to clinch Super Bowl trip

BY DENNIS WASZAK JR.
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Who Dey!? Not those same ol' Bungles. Not even close.

Joe Burrow and these young, hungry Cincinnati Bengals are Super Bowl-bound as unexpected and tenacious AFC champions.

Evan McPherson kicked a 31-yard field goal with 9:22 left in overtime after Burrow kept his cool while leading a furious second-half comeback. They got the Bengals to the NFL's big game for the first time in 33 years with a 27-24 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs for the AFC championship on Sunday.

"It's a special team that's capable of doing special things," said coach Zac Taylor, who was in elementary school the last time the Bengals went to the Super Bowl.

"We've said that from the get-go, whether people believed us or not," he added. "We believed. So we're not surprised."

And who could blame them?

The Bengals erased an 18-point deficit — tying an AFC title game record for largest comeback — to take a late 24-21 lead on McPherson's 52-yarder.

"I'd say nobody blinked an eye," the rookie kicker said of the Bengals falling behind big early. "I think we all thought we were going to come back and win the game."

But Harrison Butker's 44-yard kick as time expired in regulation sent it to overtime a week after his 49-yarder on the final play of regulation did the same against Buffalo.

And after the Bills' Josh Allen called tails and it came up heads for the overtime coin toss in that one — giving Patrick Mahomes and the Chiefs the ball to seal a wild 42-26 victory — Cincinnati backup quarterback Brandon Allen called heads and the coin came up tails.

The Chiefs opened overtime again with the ball, but Vonn Bell intercepted Mahomes on the

TRIMBLE BOYS BEAT MADONNA

Trimble County ended its five-game losing streak with a 70-49 win at Villa Madonna on Saturday in boys basketball.

LADY CUBS FALL TO SCOTTSBURG

Madison rallied from 14 points down to take the lead late but couldn't hold on in a 46-43 loss at Scottsburg in the Cubs' girls basketball regular-season finale Saturday on the road.

Madison started off the game ice cold, trailing 12-6 after the first quarter and 23-14 at halftime. Scottsburg pushed its lead to 29-15 midway through the third quarter when the Cubs came alive.

Cameran Cahall began the comeback with a steal and two free throws and Alaina Kelley took a charge that ignited a 24-8 run that saw the Cubs take a 39-38 lead with 3:18 left in regulation on Cahall's basket.

Madison couldn't maintain that momentum however. Carrie Hiler hit a 3-pointer to give the lead back to Scottsburg and the Warriorettes never trailed again. Madison tied the score at 43-43 on a pair of Taylor Lynch free throws with 1:13 to play but Scottsburg's Hannah Stutesman was fouled on a 3-point attempt and hit all three shots to give the Warriorettes a three-point lead. A turnover by the Cubs then ended the game.

Cahall scored 22 points on 5-of-10 shooting from the floor and 11-of-12 free throws to lead Madison while Lynch had nine points. Patty Johnson added five points and Cadence Traylor scored four.

Madison ends the regular season with an 11-8 record and opens the IHSAA Class 3A Sectional at North Harrison on Wednesday against the tourney hosts. With a win, the Cubs would play either third-ranked Silver Creek or Scottsburg in the semifinals on Friday. The championship game is on Saturday.

PACERS FALL IN DOUBLE OT

Switzerland County and Milan battled through two overtimes before Milan picked up a 77-72 victory in Vevay Saturday in boys basketball.

Switzerland led 30-26 at the half but Milan took a 41-40 lead into the fourth quarter. Regulation ended with the squads tied 56-56 and both teams scored nine points in the first overtime to force a second. The visiting Indians then outscored Switzerland 12-7 in the second OT to pick up their first win of the season.

Freshman Cam Craig scored 27 points on 8-of-15 shooting from the floor to lead the Pacers. Craig was also 9-of-16 from the free-throw line and hit a pair of 3-pointers.

Bryce Wrightsman scored 14 points, had six rebounds and four assists for Switzerland while Jacob Williams had 10 points and eight rebounds.

Switzerland, now 6-10 overall and 0-4 in the Ohio River Valley Conference, travels to Clarksville on Thursday and hosts New Washington Saturday afternoon.

Panthers hammer Defiance to take control of HCAC race

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Hanover men's basketball held Defiance to just 26% shooting and avenged its only Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference loss of the season by blasting the Yellow Jackets 70-34 Saturday at Collier Arena.

The Panthers, who improved to 15-2 on the season, held a double-digit lead less than 10 minutes into the game and never looked back, shooting 57% (16-for-28) from the floor in the first half to take a 41-19 lead at halftime. Hanover cooled considerably in the second half but still outscored Defiance 29-15 to cruise to the win.

Ty Houston hit three 3-pointers and scored 15 points to lead Hanover while Max Greenamoyer scored 13 points and Isaac Hibbard added 12 points and seven rebounds.

Hanover improves to 11-1 in HCAC play and seizes a stranglehold on the league lead. Anderson lost on Saturday, dropping the Ravens to three games back of Hanover in the standings with just six games to play.

Rams rally to Super Bowl with stunning 20-17 win over Niners

BY GREG BEACHAM
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — After Matthew Stafford's wife leaped into his arms, he took a moment to soak it all in — this victory, this confetti-strewn field, this remarkable year of his life.

One year to the day after the quarterback agreed to join the star-studded Los Angeles Rams for a shot at a ring, their chances were dimming rapidly when they headed into the fourth quarter of the NFC championship game down by double digits to the mighty San Francisco 49ers.

But with three gritty scoring drives followed by a cathartic defensive stand, the Rams secured the right to stay home for the Super Bowl — and Stafford shone the brightest in this impressive constellation.

Travin Howard made a game-sealing interception with 1:09 to play, and the Rams roared back in the fourth quarter to secure a spot in the Super Bowl at their home stadium next month with a thrilling 20-17 victory Sunday night.

"You can't write the story any better," Stafford said. "I'm at a loss for words. I'm just having a blast playing ball with these guys and, shoot, we've got one more at the home stadium. Let's get it done."

Los Angeles will welcome the Cincinnati Bengals in two weeks for Super Bowl 56 in Rams owner Stan Kroenke's multibillion-dollar SoFi Stadium.

Stafford passed for 337 yards and hit Cooper Kupp with two touchdown passes for the Rams (15-5), who began the fourth quarter down 17-7. But after Kupp's second TD catch and a tying field goal on a drive extended by Jaquiski Tartt's brutal dropped interception, the Rams drove for Matt Gay's go-ahead, 30-yard field goal with 1:46 to play.

Los Angeles' defense then won it when Aaron Donald got hold of Jimmy Garoppolo and forced him to fling a pass toward JaMycal Hasty. The ball caromed high in the air off Hasty's hands and came straight down to Howard — and it was secured by the fourth-year pro who only recently got a prominent role on LA's defense.

"I've got total trust and confidence in that defense, man," said Stafford, the 13-year veteran who never won a playoff game before this month. "They've been unbelievable all year. Way to freakin' ice the game. I loved it."

Kupp finished with 11 catches for 142 yards in his latest spectacular game, while Odell Beckham Jr. punched his ticket to his first Super Bowl with yet another strong performance by Los Angeles' midseason acquisition, making nine catches for 113 yards.

"The story could not be written any better for us to play them in the NFC championship and then shut the door," Beckham said of the 49ers.

The Rams won their second conference title in the past four years under coach Sean McVay and moved one step from the franchise's second championship in the Super Bowl era.

Perhaps even more impressively, Los Angeles finally snapped a six-game losing streak against its San Francisco archrivals, who secured their playoff berth with an overtime comeback victory in Inglewood just three weeks ago.

ANALYSIS

Opposites attract as Stafford, Burrow get Super

BY BARRY WILNER
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

Matthew Stafford and Joe Burrow had almost nothing in common before Sunday except that they were top overall picks in the NFL draft.

Now, they are both Super Bowl quarterbacks.

Their journeys are almost polar opposites since each left an SEC powerhouse.

Stafford was the first selection in the 2009 draft out of Georgia and then spent a dozen years trying not to get pummeled in Detroit. Always considered a good player on a bad team — Detroit is that rare franchise that existed when the Super Bowl was created but never has been to it — Stafford was rescued by the Rams last year. In his first season as their QB, he's helped them to the big game, his connection with unanimous All-Pro receiver Cooper Kupp something very special. And seemingly unstoppable.

"Couldn't be more grateful for Matthew Stafford," coach Sean McVay said after Stafford went 31 of 45 for 337 yards with two TD passes in the 20-17 victory over San Francisco for the NFC title.

To say Stafford is a vast improvement over Jared Goff, the No. 1 overall choice in 2016, is too obvious. Stafford has a better arm, better technique, a better handle for pressure — statistically, he's the top NFL passer against blitzes — and, simply, better command of the most important position on the field. Yes, Goff got to the Super Bowl with the Rams in 2018, when they lost to New England with a wretched offensive performance. But Stafford in a lot of ways took the Rams to the big game rather than being along for the ride.

"You can't write the story any better," Stafford said. "I'm at a loss for words. I'm just having a blast playing ball with these guys and, shoot, we've got one more at the home stadium. Let's get it done."

The Rams (15-5) have blasted right into the Super Bowl in two weeks, when for the second straight year after it never occurred in the 54 previous editions, they will host it in their stadium. Tampa Bay turned that trick last season.

With the weapons on offense (Kupp and Odell Beckham Jr., most notably) and stars on defense such as unanimous All-Pro tackle Aaron Donald and linebacker Von Miller, a 2015 NFL champion with Denver, Stafford is in excellent position to turn his first season in L.A. into a Lombardi Trophy celebration.

Bengals rookie kicker McPherson comes up big again

BY DENNIS WASZAK JR.
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Evan McPherson kept to himself as he jogged onto the field in overtime at Arrowhead Stadium, saying nothing to his Cincinnati Bengals teammates.

The 22-year-old rookie kicker didn't need to. They all knew what he was thinking with the season on the line.

"It was going through my head," McPherson said, "that there was a good chance we were going to the Super Bowl."

And that's exactly where they're heading.

McPherson kicked a 31-yard field goal in overtime to lift the Bengals to the Super Bowl for the first time in 33 years with a 27-24 victory over Patrick Mahomes and the Kansas City Chiefs in the AFC championship game.

"It's just so surreal that this game came down to a field goal," McPherson said.

Then again, it might have been absolutely fitting.

After all, McPherson is a major reason the Bengals are here. He's 12 for 12 on his postseason field goal tries, three makes from breaking Adam Vinatieri's NFL record for one postseason. He'll get that chance on Feb. 13 in Inglewood, Calif, when the Bengals take on the NFC champion Rams at SoFi Stadium.

"That's definitely something we're going to shoot for," McPherson said. "I mean, we'll see how it goes. I'd like to score a lot of touchdowns in the Super Bowl. But however we can get points in the Super Bowl, we'll do."

MADISON

After falling down by four, Madison clawed back on a Falconberry basket and Grote picked up a steal with 26 seconds to go. North Harrison, known for its defense, kept the Cubs out of the paint on the last possession and Grote's game-winning 3-point attempt from the top of the key rimmed out, allowing the Cougars to escape.

While Stotts would have loved to have gotten the win, watching his team come together was one of the best things he has seen all season.

"We had zero letdowns. You can tell they like to be around each other and they're having fun," Stotts said. "This was one of our best weeks of practice that we've had since conditioning and that's a big sign of their maturity. It was good to see that nobody backed down tonight against a really good team."

Falconberry finished the game with 20 points and six rebounds to lead the Cubs while Grote had 17 points. As a team, Madison shot only 39% (19-for-49) but also had only seven turnovers.

McIntire had a game-high 23 points to lead North Harrison (11-3).

Madison returns to action with three games in five days this week, starting with a road game at Silver Creek tonight. Madison and Creek were scheduled to play last Friday, but that game was moved due to weather.

Madison will then head to Seymour on Thursday and wrap up the week at home against Batesville on Saturday.

In the championship round, Stewart suffered a 15-0 technical fall to Columbus East's Noah Lykins to finish second. Meanwhile, Gross rebounded to beat Switzerland County's Chazz Hartley by major decision and pin Jennings County's Lane Kirchner in 2:57 to claim third with Hartley (24-13) finishing fifth.

Rose (33-3) reached the finals at 138 pounds by pinning Madison's Emmett Willhite in the quarterfinals and edging Jennings County's Evan Sochaki 3-2 in the semifinals. He suffered an 8-2 loss to Columbus East's Reece Fisher in the finals. Willhite (12-2) recovered from his loss to Rose to place third overall.

Madison's Noah Burkhardt (33-5), who has been battling a torn labrum, suffered a loss to Seymour's Sam Chandler in the semifinals but regrouped to take third place at 145 pounds. Chandler, who lost in the championship, has withdrawn from the regional and Burkhardt will go into that tourney seeded as the sectional runner-up.

third play, and Burrow and the Bengals took over.

And now they're heading to the Super Bowl for the first time since 1989 after winning their first playoff overtime game.

"Usually when you lose the coin flip to those guys, you're going home," said Burrow, the Bengals' second-year quarterback. "Our defense really stepped up and made plays in the second half. And on offense we made plays when we had to. I thought the offensive line played really well all day. We started running the ball there at the end and that's exciting.

"Big win for us."

You might say that.

Brooks' 27 leads UK past Kansas 80-62

BY DAVID SMALE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAWRENCE, Kan. — Keion Brooks scored 27 points and Oscar Tshiebwe had a double-double as No. 12 Kentucky manhandled No. 5 Kansas 80-62 on Saturday night.

The Wildcats grabbed a big halftime lead in Allen Fieldhouse and cruised to improve to 24-10 all-time in the series. Kansas had won four of the past five coming in. The last Kentucky win in Allen Fieldhouse was in 1985.

Kentucky coach John Calipari wasn't interested in discussing history.

"I don't even know who we played two weeks ago," he said after the game. "We've won a lot of games against ranked teams, all kinds of different ways. I've done this a long time and I've been in many of these games on the road where it's (ESPN College) Game Day. I told the team, 'All the pressure is on the other team. If you play for 40 minutes, watch what happens.' "

Calipari said he's seen this coming from Brooks.

"It's how he's been playing in his last couple of games and in practice," Calipari said. "It wasn't just making baskets. He rebounded. He defended. He came from the week side and tipped the ball. He made great plays. He did all the other things, and then he made shots."

Tshiebwe had 17 points and 14 rebounds for Kentucky (17-4), which also got 12 points from Kellan Grady and 11 from Jacob Toppin.

Kansas coach Bill Self was not surprised by Tshiebwe's game.

"Oscar's stats don't show how good he is at rebounding, and his stats show that he's the best rebounder in the country," Self said.

But Tshiebwe was more interested in talking about Brooks, who was not made available after the game.

"I'm so proud of him," Tshiebwe said. "I want him to keep coming like that every night. We can be a top team if everyone steps up like that. They pay attention too much to me. Now, they forget about him."

Ivey's 3 in last second helps Purdue top Ohio State

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WEST LAFAYETTE — Purdue coach Matt Painter thought he scripted a simple final play Sunday.

Jaden Ivey messed it up, then found a way to make up for his miscue.

When the sophomore guard saw Eric Hunter Jr. pinned in the corner, Ivey freed himself on the wing in front of the Boilermakers bench and delivered a tiebreaking 3-pointer with 0.6 seconds left to give sixth-ranked Purdue an 81-78 victory over No. 16 Ohio State.

"With seconds left, I just went to the ball and got my hands on the ball," Ivey said. "It was supposed to be for Zach (Edey), but I just got confused, honestly. Sometimes you've just got to make a play."

Ivey has delivered repeatedly this season as the Boilermakers top scorer. This time, he scored 21 points and made 3 of 6 from beyond the arc after coming off the bench for the second straight game since missing one game with an injured hip flexor.

Edey added 20 points as the Boilermakers (18-3, 7-3 Big Ten) won their fourth in a row and beat their 28th ranked opponent in the past six seasons.

It sure didn't look like Purdue would need Ivey's big shot when it jumped out to 52-32 lead with 14:35 remaining. But Ohio State (13-5, 6-3) charged back, finally tying the score when Kyle Young intercepted the Boilermakers inbound pass after E.J. Liddell cut the deficit to 78-75 with 33.5 seconds left.

The Buckeyes again swung the ball to Liddell, who knocked down the tying 3 with 25.3 seconds left. They just couldn't keep the ball out of Ivey's hands, even if wasn't by design.

"We did anticipate them making an action for Ivey," coach Chris Holtmann said. "I thought Gene (Brown III) was there a little bit. But give the kid credit, he made the shot."

For the Buckeyes, it was a deflating finish after they methodically fought their way back. Liddell and Malaki Branham each scored 20 points to lead Ohio State, which never led in the second half as its three-game winning streak ended.

"We didn't do what we were supposed to do and normally the basketball gods aren't with you when that happens," Painter said after moving within two wins of No. 400 in his career. "We just got lucky. because Ohio State played really well down the stretch."

Doncic, Kleber lead Mavericks past Carlisle, Pacers

BY THE ASSSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS — Luka Doncic had 30 points and 12 assists and the Dallas Mavericks spoiled former coach Rick Carlisle's return with Indiana, routing the Pacers 132-105 on Saturday night.

Carlisle coached the Mavericks during the past 13 seasons, leading the team to its lone title in 2011. He resigned June 16 and rejoined the Pacers a week later. The 62-year-old coach was recognized with a video tribute before the game, tears streaming down his face afterward. After the final buzzer, Carlisle hugged Mavericks coach Jason Kidd, who played for him on the title team, and the Dallas players.

"This is a special place," Carlisle said. "It's a challenging thing coming back like this."

"He deserves it," Doncic said about his former coach's tribute.

Kidd said of their embrace: "I just said it was good to see him, and he said, 'You guys are playing the right way, and you guys have a chance.' ... And best of luck the rest of the way."

Reggie Bullock added a season-high 23 points, hitting 6 of 7 3-pointers, and Maxi Kleber had 15 points and 13 rebounds — one short of his career high — on his 30th birthday. The Mavericks have won 13 of 16 to improve to 29-21.

Duane Washington Jr. led the Pacers with 22 points, and Domantas Sabonis had 21 points and 15 rebounds. Coming off an overtime victory Friday night at Oklahoma City, Indiana has lost four of five to fall to 18-33.

The Mavericks (29-21) are one game behind fourth-place Utah in the Western Conference. The Pacers (18-33) are 6 1/2 games out of the play-in field in the East.

Kristaps Porzingis left the game in second quarter with right knee soreness. Dallas' No. 2 scorer averaging 19.7 points, Porzingis had five points and one rebound in 11 minutes.

Dallas led 34-23 after one period, with Doncic scoring or assisting on 26 points. He played only two minutes in the fourth quarter.

"If he's not the best player in the world, he's right on the cusp," Carlisle said.

Bullock scored 14 points in the second period, hitting all five of his shots and three 3-pointers. He's one of multiple Dallas players filling the void left by last Tuesday's injury to Tim Hardaway Jr., who's out indefinitely with a fractured fifth metatarsal in his left foot.

"I know what I'm capable of doing," said Bullock, who joined the team as a free agent last August. "Now that he's down, it's the next man up."

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

Late in the third quarter with Dallas leading by 17 points, Carlisle indicated Doncic had traveling and got the call, much to the Slovenian's dismay.

"You've got to try to find some way to slow the guy down," Carlisle said with a smile.

"It's not called very often," Doncic said.

WISH YOU WERE HERE
